Dear Parent or Guardian,

This spring, our schools will administer the NYS Grades 3-8 assessments in English Language Arts (March 28-30) and Math (May 2-4).

We understand and respect the concerns some parents and guardians may have about testing. While we encourage test participation, we know that there will be parents who decide otherwise. However, we would like to explain how we use the results to improve education for your child as well as changes meant to improve testing conditions this year.

The most important thing we want parents to know is the state assessments provide us with important data that we use to improve education for all students. We view these tests as a measure of our performance, not your child's. For example, if we find a grade is struggling with a math concept, we may enhance instruction in that area with new resources or adjust how we teach the concept.

Unfortunately, when fewer students take the exams we are left with an incomplete picture of how our students are learning. This limits our ability to address issues that would improve how we educate our students. This is a key reason that educational groups like the National PTA urge parents to allow students to take these assessments.

Our teachers, staff and administrators do everything we can to make students feel comfortable taking exams. Like any test, we ask our students to simply do their best. In response to parent and educator concerns, New York State has also made a number of changes to testing last year. These include:

- Fewer test questions: Exams will be shorter with fewer questions in ELA and Math.
- Untimed tests: Students will have as much time as they need to finish exams at their own pace.
- More teacher involvement: The state has increased the number of teachers who create and review exams. Last fall, teachers evaluated and selected questions for use on this spring's tests.
- Results not tied to evaluations: Exam results will not be used to evaluate teacher or principals. A moratorium is in place until 2018 while the state develops a new evaluation system.

We hope this information helps explain how we use the state's testing program to evaluate and measure student growth. While we will respect the wishes of any parent who requests their child not take the exams, we believe participation helps improve our instructional program (as well as comply with state and federal regulations).

If you have any questions at all, please contact me or your student's principal. We want to ensure you have all the answers you need on this important issue. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Stephen Young,
