Cindy Harrison-An Inspiration to All

The Petersburg Fire Department/Cindy Harrison Memorial Scholarship has been established to honor the memory of Petersburg fire fighter, Cindy Harrison, who after a two-year fight with breast cancer died in 1999 at the age of 40.

Cindy was an active member of the Petersburg Fire Department for 11 years, serving as a captain for six of those years. She was the first female line officer in the department's history and was best known for being an aggressive fire fighter who would do as much as her male fire fighting counterparts. She also brought a softer, more caring side to fire fighting such as giving a toy to a child who had just lost his/her home, providing a ride home to Cohoes for a fire victim on Easter, or vacuuming the floor of a house that had had a chimney fire and apologizing for the mess that the "guys" had made!

Whether it was while answering fire alarms or at her job, Cindy dedicated her life to helping others. She worked as a home health aide for 16 years and was always known to take on the cases in which the patients would need extra care. Many of them were terminally ill Hospice patients. There were many holidays Cindy brought patients to her own home to spend the day and have dinner so they would not be alone. She treated the people in her care as if they were members of her family! Cindy continued her work until just a few weeks before her death, stating that her patients shouldn't suffer just because she was sick.

Fighting to survive and caring for others, was nothing new to Cindy; she did it most of her life. As a child, she grew up on a farm near the Petersburg Pass. When she was 15, her father was killed in a fire that destroyed the family home. Her mother was left to raise six children on her own. Cindy, being one of the oldest, helped raise her younger siblings. After such an emotional and personal encounter with a fire tragedy, one can only imagine what courage it took for her to become an aggressive interior fire fighter herself!

While continuing to help out at home, Cindy also managed to raise a daughter. For many years she was a single parent, during which time she finished school and worked to support her child with no assistance.

Cindy Harrison was indeed a woman who overcame adversity to accomplish much before her life was cut so short! Her strength and perseverance were an inspiration to all who knew her. She maintained the attitude that there was always someone worse off than she, and, until the end, it was her mission to locate and help such persons! Cindy's concern was for others until the day she died.
