Geese in a Field

I found some geese in a field at the Hancock school by Tyler Hoffman on
May 1st at 11:27

Striped bass

Mr. Scannell May 2nd, 2021

This is a migratory species that only spends a short period of the year in the capital region.

Question: Does anyone know why this saltwater fish species swims over 100 up the Hudson River from the Atlantic Ocean?

Nicholas neet: to find food?

Journey singer: to have more space and things to survive?

Brooklyn Hays: I like fishing

Wild turkey

Not a very good picture but you can see it Right?

Layla, I think it is a great picture! I don't think anyone captured a wild turkey pic last year!

Mr. S

Mr S asked:

Does anyone know why HE is fanning his tail feathers??

Alexzander: thats very cool how they do that

Nicholas neet:

I think they fan their feathers to impress mates

Journey singer: to get all the lady's so

Ms. Kozel

Toad hanging out in my soaking wet yard.

Mr. Scannell asked: Why do you think toads and other amphibians like these moist conditions.

Journey Sniger: because they need the moisture to survive because amphibians are in-water and on-land animals

Alexzander: he looks like a mug pile

A baby frog at my river

Taken By Tyler on May 4 at 12:09

It is a baby river frog and it was very jumpy

Amaya brown: Nice

Alexzander: that baby frog is so small

Alex / What bird eggs are they?

Journey-this is a very good

Photo Alex!

Journey Sniger: i think they are

Robin eggs

Jade- there so very tiny

Jack- have they hatched yet?

Caught an adult North eastern Redback salamander

Taken by Tyler Hoffman on
May 13th at 8:42 am

Nice Tyler! We saw a few of these today at the school
when exploring. Mr S.

I found a pregnant North eastern Redback
salamander -journey sniger

Caught some cows just coming out side

There 3 cows and there all female taken at 4:30 am May 5/13/21 by Jade Baldwin. Some are brown and some are brown and white.

It looks like two of them are eating breakfast. -elliot smith

In a field that I live next to there is a farm with cows and it was so far away so we thought they where bears- Jack Hart

Saw this little milk snake caught him in in some netting.

Milk Snake, Approx 18"

Taken by Austin Lobdell

May 5/12/21 5:00pm

He is kinda dark because he has not shed, im guessing.

That's cool! -journey sniger

I love snakes: xavier lamica

He looks like he might shed soon -elliott smith

I think snakes are really cool-Andrew Crimmel

Captured this coyote on the trail cam

Taken by Elijah burdick

He do be moving-Elijah

Very cool. This is the first picture of a grey fox that we have recorded.

Mr. S

I believe this is a bug called a centipede.
Mr. S

Cool I wonder how many legs this thing
has. - lukas zuke

My older brothers Fancy Ball Python, May

Taken by Julia Schoeffel 5/14 at 7:48 am

Her favorite spot to take a nap but this time she said hello. I had to use one from yesterday because she was in her hide all day today.

Can he kill a full grown man: xavier lamica

That's not really a willed animal - lukas zuke

The different areas for him to go in look cool -elliott smith

Eggs in a nest I found today

Taken by Julia Schoeffel 5/16 10:59 am

I wonder what kind of eggs they are?

The nest they make is cool because it is made of random materials. -elliot smith

a turtle in my pond

Nicholas neet: do u know what kind it is?

Based on its size and shape I would say it is a painted turtle, or a red eared Slider. Red eared sliders are invasive. They were originally pets that were ultimately released into the wild.

Mr. S

Nice picture. I like the angle.

Mr S

A trail camera was left on a very active woodland trail and not disturbed for two weeks.

The following slides show any animal that set the camera off.

They are posted in the order that the photos were captured. Some of the animals remained near the camera for a while. As a result there were multiple photos, however only one picture was posted for each separate encounter.

Feel free to offer thoughts and comments.

Baltimore Oriole, 5/25/21

Taken by: Mrs. Goodermote

Interesting Facts:

Still widespread and common, but surveys show declines in recent decades. In the mid 20th century, Dutch elm disease killed many of the American elms that had been favorite nesting trees for this species in the past.

Habitat:

Open woods, riverside groves, elms, shade trees. Breeds in deciduous or mixed woodland, generally in open woods or edges rather than interior of dense forest.
